

bait·n' swish

by david sisco

What happens when two friends have unresolved feelings for each other? Gay speed dating, a trip to Boise and a slew of outrageous drag queens.

BAIT n' SWISH are two plays by award-winning playwright David Sisco that chronicle the story of Justin and Charlie, who navigate their way through a series of hilarious situations that force them to realize what they really mean to each other.

Two plays, one intermission, forty-nine characters, four folding chairs, a whistle and a buzzer

"Fun, entertaining and skillfully played, it's a tour-de-force display of acting. Gualtieri and Sisco jump from character to character, manipulating their bodies, voices, faces and personalities without ever veering into the realm of cliché."
